This Christmas, I did not see Santa Clause.

But I did get a purview of the Due Process Clause, coming down the back-side of my chimney.

Unlike Santa Clause, the Due Process Clause takes property. "It" takes property. Using its liberty, Using its freedom the Due Process Clause takes property, life and liberty of other people/the Gentiles

Based on the Reclaimed Water "variance" application,

The Due Process Clause (opposite of Santa Clause) is in total disrespect of the Establishment of Christianity. And is intent on vanquishing the Gentiles.

Furthermore:

The Constitutional "Nativity", the build-up under the construct of the 14th Amendment, and the birthing of the new political body "thereof". This birth, is not a Divine and Provident "Birth". But is conceived of an Evil as Declared.

Manifested on Inverted Declarations as its "Bill of attainder".

Declaring that mankind is more disposed to suffer.

Declaring, Assuming, Intending to reduce the civilian population unto absolute Despotism, giving rise to tyrannical water jurisdictions "thereof".

Counterfeiting truth as its hold on reality. Gestating constitutional harlotry as its medium.

Giving rise to "High-seas" Sorcery as Fact in Article 3 of (this) Hamiltons 1st constitution.

Revealing the Hindmost objective to the Devil as revealed on pg80 of Maloneys water code.

"WHEN IN THE COURSE OF EVENTS"
AS DECLARED
AS "SELF-EVIDENT" AS DECLARED
AS "POSTERITY" AS CONSTITUTED.

PUBLIC PRIVATE ADMINISTRATION
COMMENTARY

INACTION IS FALSE CREATIONISM.

While the concept of protecting the first users in perpetuity was developing out of the customs of the miners during the California gold rush, on the frontier principle of "first come, first served," no such development occurred during the parallel gold rush in Australia. In that country the colonial government of Victoria allowed no period of legislative inaction in which the customs of the miners could develop into a recognizable body of legal principles. Government licenses to supply water for gold mining purposes were issued and supplied the same mining needs as the California doctrine of prior appropriation but the licenses were for a period of fifteen years rather than in perpetuity. The Victoria government was, therefore, in a position to plan and coordinate the water development of the country in a way not possible in the American West.<sup>69</sup>

In these days of emphasis on conservation of natural resources, another criticism of the appropriation approach is worth noting. Adoption of the appropriative principle does not lead to conservation of water resources. It supports the rugged individualist theory that ignores the needs of all of society, and not the interest-of-the-public principle which should be applied to this great natural resource. If one user can put an entire stream to his beneficial use, he can acquire the exclusive right to the use of the water of that stream, a vested right continuing as long as he puts the water to such use. Utilization, rather than conservation, is the guiding principle, and the devil take the hindmost. Big industry in the East would be the big winner from the adoption of such a principle, to the exclusion of other very valid interests.

A further telling criticism of the priority approach is that, due to its oversimplification, it does not provide an adequate legal tool for establishing an entire complex of state water law and policy. It contributes nothing toward answering the question 'What is the best use?'<sup>70</sup> A working team of hydrologists, biologists, engineers, economists, political scientists, and lawyers could best answer that question. The reasonable use doctrine provides the flexibility within which such a team can work. The priority approach does not.
