In 2011, County, the Sixth Judicial Circuit, Domestic Violence Service Providers, Clerk of Circuit Court, Pinellas County Sheriff, community law programs, the Domestic Violence Task Force, treatment providers, interested citizens, and other domestic violence prevention advocates - collectively called the Pinellas County Collaboration to Prevent Domestic Violence - worked together, with funding from the OVW Courts Training and Improvements Program to establish a dedicated Civil Domestic Violence Court. The partners entered the project with the hope to institutionalize new procedures that better promote victim safety, ensure accountability for domestic violence perpetrators, and enhance informed, educated judicial decision making. The group launched the new civil Court in January 2013. The collaboration has continued to work since then to continue to improve and enhance the new Civil Domestic Violence Court model.
